

JON TESTER

Working for Farmers & Ranchers

As a 4th-generation dirt farmer and the only working farmer in the Senate, Jon fights every day for the family farmers and ranchers who power Montana's economy.

He's Listening

Jon has held listening sessions across the state on the upcoming Farm Bill to hear directly from Montana farmers and ranchers about their priorities.

He's Fighting

Jon knows that Montana farmers and ranchers grow and raise the best product in the world, and he's fought tirelessly to ensure they have a level playing field.

Jon successfully pressured the Trump Administration to block imports of tainted meat from Brazil and helped push to open Chinese markets to Montana beef.

He's relentlessly fought to ensure Montana honey producers get the restitution they're owed from Chinese dumping and to urge the federal government to act against unfair Canadian practices that devalue Montana wheat. And he's tirelessly fought against attempts by India to limit imports of Montana peas and lentils – one of our state's fastest growing agricultural products.

Jon has fought relentlessly against misguided attempts by Republican and Democratic administrations to balance the budget on the backs of rural Montanans. He successfully took on efforts to close Farm Service Agencies, eliminate rural development leadership, and cut funds for critical agriculture research facilities in Miles City and Sidney.

And when Washington bureaucrats tried to interfere with Montana farmers and ranchers, Jon stood up for them. He successfully fought to beat back attempts by the EPA and federal government to impose new regulations on things like farm dust, grain bins, and spent grain – which Montana brewers have provided to ranchers as feed for years.

He's earned the National Farmers Union's "Golden Triangle Award" for his commitment to farmers and ranchers 9 times in a row.

"I'm working day in and day out to make sure Montana's producers can thrive. Our state's number one industry needs a fighter in Washington, and I don't think you'll a better champion for agriculture than a farmer."
