

MATT ROSENDALE/NRSC AD – FACT CHECK

OVERVIEW

- Jon Tester, who recently had his 18th bill signed into law by President Trump, has been recognized by independent analysts and Montana newspapers as one of the most effective lawmakers working across the aisle to get things done for Montana.
- Matt Rosendale, the handpicked candidate of Washington, DC special interests, has been propped up by millions of dollars in outside Super PAC spending and will do their bidding – not what’s best for Montana.
- Jon Tester has been a leader in efforts to work with President Trump to strengthen our border security, including adding more border patrol agents to the border and bolstering terrorism prevention efforts.
- Matt Rosendale has repeatedly opposed efforts to keep Montanans safe - he was one of only seven state senators to vote against legislation to toughen penalties for human trafficking and make the law more victim-centered, voted against creating a permanent sexual assault prosecution office in the Montana Department of Justice, and voted against funding a service to notify victims of sex crimes when their attacker was released from prison.
- Matt Rosendale is a multimillionaire East Coast real estate developer who moved to Montana after buying a $2 million trophy ranch that he doesn’t even ranch himself and a political opportunist who started his campaign with a “pants on fire” lie about Jon Tester’s record.

CLAIM

TRUMP: A vote for Jon Tester is a vote for Chuck Schumer, Nancy Pelosi.

"Senate Reform Fund, a dark-money group, started airing a six-figure ad this week against Sen. Jon Tester (D) that accuses him of taking 'a $25,000 excursion to Israel with his wife' as well as voting 'to keep wasteful earmarks' and 'against repealing the death tax eight times.' The announcer closes: 'Jon Tester's lies are too big to ignore.' The super PAC, which formed June 29 and has not had to disclose its donors yet, on Thursday reported spending $371,000 to Wisconsin-based Nonbox to place the ad on TV, radio, and digital platforms... Tester's campaign blamed state Auditor Matt Rosendale's (R) for the 'out-of-state, dark-money allies' for the ad, which dismisses as having 'erroneously and fraudulently attributes three different quotes to Tester which he did not say' as well as noting it 'attributes ten fingers to the seven-fingered farmer.'"
